The new South Australian Public Health Act 2011: Opportunities for advancing public health and implications for research and education in South Australia

Please note this event has now been rescheduled
Friday 18 November 2011, 12:15–1:45pm

Note new venue
Presentation Room Number 5, Science Innovation Learning Centre (SILC) - Flinders University

LUNCHTIME SEMINAR

Seminar presented by:

Dr Stephen Christley
Chief Public Health Officer, Department of Health

Mr. Danny Broderick
Principal Policy Officer, Public Health and Clinical Systems, Department of Health

The new South Australian Public Health Act 2011 was passed by Parliament in June 2011.

The Act provides a new legislative framework for public health in South Australia. It is considered innovative and far-reaching in the way it addresses 21st century public health issues through state and local government action. The Act also develops processes and strategies which engage the non-government, community and business sectors.

This seminar offers an opportunity to hear about the key features of this new legislation and to open discussions about how the new Act may intersect with your work. In particular, this session will discuss the implications and opportunities of the new Act for Public Health research and education in this state.

Please direct any enquiries about this event to Mr Simeon Sharo southgate.admin@flinders.edu.au 08 7221 8411